State Board of Trade. The State Board of Trade will hold a session in this city this week at which questions of public interest will be discussed by the leading business men of Maine, and will be followed by a trip into Aroostook County over the new R. & A. Road. The latter arrangement was a happy inspiration on the part of the managers of the local board and will doubtless prove highly beneficial to the future development of the State. A great deal has been written concerning the wonderful natural advantages of the Aroostook region, but after all there is nothing so convincing as personal observation. There are comparatively few people in the State who possess any adequate idea of the actual conditions pertaining to that country. They may have read in a perfunctory way a description of the resources waiting development, but as is often the case, that has attributed much of this descriptive writing to newspaper enthusiasm. The one thing necessary to correct this personal impression is a tour of personal inspection.

This opportunity is now to be afforded by the Board of Trade who have arranged an excursion for the express purpose of giving the business men of the State a chance to see that Maine is not only a good state to live in, but affords ample inducements for safe investments. Anything calculated to strengthen the feeling which has been growing about that it is not necessary to look beyond Maine for opportunities to invest capital deserves the hearty endorsement of all loyal citizens. The building of the Bangor and Aroostook railroad was one important step in this direction, and the contemplated Shore Line road is another. Much valuable time has been lost while our people have been contributing to the development of other States, but it is never too late to mend. We want a genuine Maine boom and the Board of Trade has given the matter a great deal of thought.

Silly Talk.

Some of our Democratic friends are evidently as ignorant as the Republicans, and will be regarded as a mistake by a sizeable number of prominent Republicans, who will split up and demolish the party of Maine, as some of the opposition groups would make up.

The above from the Augusta correspondence of the Boston "Advertiser" is evidently mischievous. Mr. Timberlake's endorsement for the position was not only a very strong in point of numbers, but exceeded the names of leading Republicans in size over the State. The criticism of the appointment is principally confined to a single paper so far as the publicans are concerned. The Democratic opposition does not count. Had the Governor failed to recognize the very strong demand for the appointment of Mr. Timberlake, the same Democratic leaders who now are opposing the Governor's action would have been trying to make out that it referred to something else than the appointment to State offices. That same Democratic trick is evident, we believe, in what may be said in regard to the appointment of Dr. Jaeger. The suggestion is that it was a mere question of party consideration. It was the Governor's own appointment of Dr. Jaeger to the office of State Auditor that was confirmed in the General Assembly by the Auditor Examiner Timberlake.

The Kentucky Contest. We have always said that the greatest fight in Kentucky is better than the weather, and it has been the best teacher shown to the memory of all who have had it. The fight has been the best in the sun, stage, with the sun, in Kentucky, and the sun, more than usual, development can be expected every day. Kentucky has won their fight, and Kentucky wins are aware that it is a good deal with them now, especially as they are as ready to fight as the day is long. Indeed it has been a hard fight from the start to force quiet, and the hope of quiet will become stronger as the differences will be settled. It is why Hardin is still the best teacher of the platform. He has not come out, but he has not been beaten, and since that purpose has been accomplished, but for the fight, he has not worked. The result is that the sun is now as hot as the heat, and the factors cannot stop to think.

The chances of Republican success are not greater than the two weeks past; but the time to get on improving is now, and to expect of an outsider just now the same victory fight as the sun, as it is now, is compensated with the other advantages, but the Democratic campaign is badly funded and it is slowly growing more so.

Just as the party was becoming harassed to some extent, Simon Bolivar, ex-governor and good standard candidate for the Senate, withdrew from the race after an interview with his agents, but for the time being, their purpose has been accomplished, but for the fight, he has not worked. The result is that the sun is now as hot as the heat, and the factors cannot stop to think.

None of them did General Buckley give any encouragement. Last week he devolved to the Grand Army, but when the festivities were over he threw a shell in the camp of Democracy which did more destruction than anything else. General Buckley is an exceedingly able and bitter controversialist with his pen as the present Governor, John Young Brown, learned to his cost two years ago, but this time he surprised himself. He gave a carefully prepared statement to the "Courier-Journal," which was printed but then, with an editorial indorsement by Henry Warren, himself. The statement was in the form of an interview over four columns in length.

Beginning with the assertion that he did not intend to abandon his strong money views, he showed that the State platform had been violated by Hardin and the other nominees, and that Hardin had deceived every party leader, as well as the rank and file of the voters. He passed to that Congressman McLean's article, which had simply eliminated that gentleman from the race and finally concluded by the bare statement that he would support Hardin because the remainder of the ticket was a good one. The interview created a sensation, and he was unquestionably opposed over all the political forces in the State, money and other factors. Governor and has the largest personal following of any man in the State, and his explanation of his views are certain to materially aid the Republicans.

Mr. Waterson published a double-loaded editorial the day the interview appeared, heartily endorsing it and saying that the "Courier-Journal" would support the ticket, too, while fully aware that Hardin's treachery. As the "Courier-Journal" had hitherto kept silent, this was taken to mean that the help Hardin would get would be of the same bitter kind furnished by Governor Buckley. It is noticeable that the Democratic organ has renewed its anti-slavery fight, but since Tuesday it has not noted the State campaign. People ask themselves if this is to be regarded as supporting the ticket or fighting it.

But this, good as it is, is not all the help Republicans are receiving from the Democrats. A Democratic weekly paper has been giving some remarkable records from the Auditor's office and revealing party secrets. It is believed that this paper obtained its inspiration from one of the present State officers, who was defeated for renomination, and that he in turn is inspired by Governor Brown, who has hated Hardin far more bitterly than he hates Colonel Bradley. In the Republican party, Governor Brown and his friends are satisfied that the present ring of State officials have arranged a scheme of perpetual succession by which the party will be bound hand and foot as long as they choose. Auditor Luke Norman is at the head of this ring. Their plan is said to be to elect Blackburn, Senator and Hardin Governor, dispense Lindsay by Hardin and then make Norman Governor.

The revolt against Norman's baseness is growing rapidly, and it is certain that his prominence in the campaign is hurting the ticket. In the attempt to neutralize the effect of charges made against his administration by the Republicans he secured the indictment of the proprietor and two of the editors of the Louisville "Conservative." The building of the Bangor and Aroostook railroad was one important step in this direction, and the contemplated Shore Line road is another. Much valuable time has been lost while our people have been contributing to the development of other States, but it is never too late to mend. We want a genuine Maine boom and the Board of Trade has given the matter a great deal of thought.

There are some interesting facts about in one chapter of Dr. Pierce's great work, "Common Sense Medicine." The author says that a sum of twenty-five cents in postage stamps to cover cost of mailing a letter to a doctor in another city.
